

Figure 3 P-values from analysis of simulated datasets with various numbers of taxa. The X-axis indicates the number of taxa present in a dataset while the Y-axis indicates the p-value generated from each test. The values at the top of the plot indicate the percentage of simulated datasets that resulted in significant results under our test. Each column contains the results of 100 tests.