

Figure 2 P-values from the analysis of simulated datasets with various scaling factors. The X-axis indicates the scaling factor used to stretch trees with a value of one indicating no relationship and a value of 10 indicating the strongest relationship. The values at the top of the plot indicate the percentage of simulated datasets that resulted in significant results under our test. Each column contains the results of 200 tests.